From the Paris Gazette, dated July 16.

Basil, July 4.

THE Advices from Milan of the 28th of last Month import, that the Detachment of Imperialists which are marching for Naples arriv'd the 18th at Monterotendo, which is within 12 Miles of Rome. General Taun and Count Martinitz went from thence to Rome, and entred at the Gate del Popolo with 2 Troops of Cuiraſſiers, contrary to an expreſs Promiſe made to the Pope, who notwithſtanding gave them Audience. They could not be prevail'd upon to ſend back thoſe Troops; on the contrary they were follow'd by 400 other Cuiraſſiers, who advanc'd to the Gate call'd Pia, but Entrance was refus'd them: Whereupon they would ſuffer no body elſe to go into the City at that Gate. The ſaid Imperial Troops are much diminiſh'd, as well by Deſertion, as by Sickneſs caus'd by the bad Air that is uſual during the Heats.

From the laſt Vienna Gazette, dated the 6th of July.

From the Body of Imperial Troops commanded by Count Taun, encamp'd near Val-Montone in the Eccleſiaſtical State, June 22. The 14th Inſtant our Army advanc'd to Otricoli, where Count Martinitz, Plenipotentiary of the Emperour and of the King of Spain overtook us. The 15th and 16th we reſted; the 16th Count Martinitz and Count Taun, ſet out for Rome. The 17th and 18th, we proceeded on our March, and reach'd Monte-Rotondo; whither Count Taun return'd from Rome. The 19th we halted. The 20th we march'd to Tivoli. The 21ſt to Paleſtrina, whither Count Martinitz came back to us from Rome. To Day, the 22d we encamp'd here 4 Italian Miles beyond Valmontone. We have Advice that the Enemy have forrag'd the Country up as far as S. Germano, to render it the more difficult for us to ſubſiſt our ſelves and enter the Kingdom of Naples. A Captain and 12 Spaniſh Dragoons have deſerted the Enemy and are come over to us; they report that as we advance forward we may expect more Deſerters.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated July 12.

Lublin, June 19. The 4th Inſtant in the Evening, M. Sienawski, Great-General of the Crown arriv'd here; having been met out of the Town by the Under-Chancellor of the Crown, the Biſhop of Cujavia, the Palatins of Lublin and Mazure, the Marſhal of the Confederacy, and all the Deputies of the Palatinats. The Primate of the Kingdom ſent his Coach likewiſe to attend him: The Coach in which was the Great General, was preceeded by 600 of the Nobility and Officers on Horſeback. The Czar ſaw this Entry incognito, and then went back to his Quarters at Jacubowiz. The 6th before the Council ſat, a Conference was held with Prince Dolhoruki Envoy of Muſcovy, upon the Czar's delaying to execute the Treaty of Lemberg, and on the Diſorders committed by his Troops: Some Deputies ſpoke in Behalf of the Archbiſhop of Lemberg, and propos'd that he ſhould be remov'd to this City during the ſitting of the Council. Some other Demands were made to the ſaid Miniſter, who promis'd to inform the Czar of them, and to report his Anſwer. This gave occaſion to adjourning the Seſſion to the 10th. The 8th the Great-General of the Crown treated the Czar very ſplendidly, with the Senators, Officers and Deputies of the Kingdom; and after this Feaſt, the Czar remov'd his Quarters to Kazimierz. The 10th the Council met, and Prince Dolhorucki's Anſwer to the Propoſitions made to him the 6th was reported; it contain'd a general Promiſe that the Czar would give them intire Satisfaction. Then ſeveral Deputies mov'd that the Interregnum ſhould be publiſh'd; others repreſented that King Auguſtus had not yet ſent the Diploma of his Abdication in Form; and then the Council was adjourn'd to the 15th, then becauſe ſome Deputies were abſent it was put off to the 16th, then to the 17th, and then to to Morrow the 20th becauſe the Sword-bearer of the Kingdom was indiſpos'd.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated July 19.

Warſaw, July 3. 'Tis advis'd from Lublin, that the great Council held there have not yet come to any Reſolutions. It appears the Deputies deſign to prolong that Aſſembly as long as they can, till they ſee which way Affairs are like to go, and whether the King of Sweden will return into Poland. Accordingly the Council have adjourn'd themſelves from one Day to another till the 25th paſt, on ſeveral Pretences, of which the principal is, that they had not receiv'd a ſatisfactory Anſwer from Prince Dolhorucki, the Czar's Miniſter, to their Complaints againſt the Muſcovite Troops, who have committed great Diſorders in ſeveral Places; and the ſaid Council have nominated Deputies to wait upon the Czar himſelf, in order to procure Redreſs of their Grievances.

Hague, July 19. 'The Miniſter of the Elector 'Palatine has acquainted ſome Members of the 'Council of State, that the Elector his Maſter, to 'put an End to the Diſpute which the King of 'Sweden has rais'd about the Dutchy of Veldens, 'ſubmits to the Arbitration of Q. Anne and of 'the Elector of Hanover; and Count Lecheraine is 'gone to the Court of Hanover on this Affair. The 'Elector Palatine is likewiſe to pay the King of 'Sweden 100000 Crowns, to ſatisfy for ſome Diſ'orders and Ravages formerly committed by the 'Palatine Troops in the Dutchy of Deux-Ponts. 'The Placard forbidding the negociating the Mint'bills of France in this Country, is publiſh'd: What 'weigh'd much with the States to reſolve upon that 'Placard, was the Conſideration that the Banks of 'beſt Repute in Europe, as thoſe of Venice, Leg'horne, Genoa, and London will not admit of Bills 'of that Sort; even the Bank of Lions in France 'it ſelf refuſes them, and that City in particular ſent 'Deputies to repreſent to the Court of France the 'great Prejudice that would redound to Commerce 'by the making thoſe Bills generally current: It 'was argued therefore, that the States would be 'wanting to their uſual Foreſight and Wiſdom, 'ſhould they allow Amſterdam to deal in Bills that 'are rejected every where elſe. The ſaid Placard 'forbids likewiſe the Exportation as well of Money 'in Specie as of Bullion and Lingots, out of theſe 'Provinces. 'Tis propos'd this will be one great 'Means to reduce France to an extreme Want of 'Money in Specie. 'Tis advis'd from Neufchatel 'the 7th Inſtant, that the Prince of Conti continued 'at Pontarlier, inſiſting before he remove to Neuf'chatel to be aſſur'd of being receiv'd there with 'greater Honours than the Count de Metternich 'was.

DUBLIN. The Parliament of this Kingdom met the 1ſt of July; when the Houſe of Commons appointed the Days of ſitting of their grand Committees, order'd Writs to be made out for the electing of new Members in the Room of ſeveral deceas'd; order'd likewiſe their Votes to be printed; and the Chancellour of the Exchequer informing the Houſe, that it was his Excellency the Lord

Lord Lieutenant's Pleasure they should adjourn to the 7th, they adjourn'd accordingly.

The 7th his Excellency the Earl of Pembroke, Lord Lieutenant, went to the House of Peers, and the Commons being sent for up, made the following Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

THE Queen through the whole Course of Her Glorious Reign, has not only shewn Her great Care for the Preservation of the Liberties of Europe, but has been always Intent on whatsoever may contribute to the good of Her Subjects, and to the utmost of Her Power, has endeavoured to Unite them in Love and Affection; and now in particular to manifest Her tender Concern for you of this Her Kingdom of Ireland, She has again call'd you together, to consider of such Laws as may be thought necessary for the future Prosperity of this Realm; and in all things to provide for the Security of it, against Forreign and Domestick Enemies; and in order to the attaining these Blessings, I am commanded by Her Majesty to recommend to you, Unanimity amongst your selves, and to inform you, that Her Majesty considering the Number of Papists in the Realm, would be glad of any Expedient for strengthening the Interest of Her Protestant Subjects in this Kingdom.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

The Publick Service requiring that several Regiments on the Establishment should be sent Abroad, I am commanded by Her Majesty to inform you, that She intends to supply the like Number of Forces for the Security of this Kingdom, and I don't doubt, but you'l make Provision of the necessary Supplies for the Payment of the Army, as well as for the Defraying the Charges of the Government; and that you may have a perfect View of what is owing, I have ordered the proper Officers to prepare and lay before you, an exact State of the Revenue.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

In Order to the Attaining and Establishing the Safety and Welfare of this Kingdom, I shall think my self extremely Happy, if during my Administration, all Matters should be conducted with that Prudence and Temper, as may justly Entitle you to the Continuance of Her Majesty's Affections: For my own part, though a great Honour, to serve in this Post, I can propose no Satisfaction in it, without your Happyness and Prosperity, the which I shall sincerely endeavour to promote, and hope, but chiefly by your Assistance to secure the good of this Kingdom, and shew in our several Stations, that we are United in our Affections to each other, as well as in Duty to the best of Queens.
